

Case called before the Lok-Adalath:

Plaintiff, defendant and their counsels are present.

Both parties have filed compromise petition stating that, they have compromised the matter amicably amongst themselves. The both parties and their respective counsels have duly signed the compromise petition.

Contents of the compromise petition read over to the parties in vernacular. They have admitted the contents of the same and have compromised the matter on their own will. On perusal of the records, the plaintiff has filed the suit for Partition and Separate Possession against the defendant. On analyzing the compromise petition no factual and legal inhibition appears to accept the compromise accordingly the following:

ORDER

Compromise petition filed by the both the parties is hereby accepted.

The suit of the plaintiff is hereby decreed in terms of compromise petition.

Compromise petition is part and parcel of the decree along with sketch map if any.

Office is directed to draw decree accordingly.
