

State Vs.

TRF-

Present: APP for the State.

Summons/warrants issued to the accused received back unserved. Processes were issued several times on the address as given for securing the presence of the accused, but his presence could not be secured due to one reason or the other. In my opinion further issuance of processes shall waste precious time of the court and it shall also put unnecessary burden on the State exchequer. Considering this fact, proceedings are ordered to be closed under Section 258 of Code of Criminal Procedure, 1973 with the rider that if at any stage accused appears or prosecution comes to know about the correct address of the accused. In that situation, on application of either of the parties, case shall be revived. Consequently, file be consigned to the record room, after due compliance.
