

ORDERS ON I.A No.1

The plaintiff has filed an application under Order 39 Rule 1 & 2 of CPC to restrain the defendants from interfering in the suit property.

2. In the affidavit to the accompanying application, the plaintiff has contended that he is the absolute owner of the suit property and in that regard has produced the documents pertaining to the suit property. It is contended that the defendants are not having any right, title and interest over the suit property, but it is seen that these defendants had once mutated their names in the revenue records. However, the plaintiffs having preferred an appeal on the said mutation order as once again restored the name of his father. Now it is alleged that these defendants are trying to trespass illegally. The suit property being the agricultural property and without ascertaining prima-faciely the actual possession in the suit property, it is not proper to pass exparte order and hence this Court proceeds to pass the following:
