

Both parties and their respective counsel are present. Both parties have filed an Interim Application (IA) under Order 23, Rule 3 of the Code of Civil Procedure (CPC) seeking compromise of the case.

In view of the compromise, the matter is referred to the Lok Adalat for settlement.

II Addl Civil Judge and JMFC.,
Nanjangud.

The case was called before the Lok Adalat. Both parties have filed IA U/O 23 Rule 3 of CPC for seeking compromise the case.

The contents of the compromise petition read over and explained to the parties in Kannada language known to them. They admit the contents to be true and correct. This court is satisfied that the parties have settled the dispute amicably. Both parties have agreed the terms of compromise petition. Further the compromise petition is also in the interest of the both parties and it is not against law. Hence, the compromise petition is accepted and accordingly. I proceed the following;

::O R D E R::

The compromise petition is allowed and suit is decreed in terms of the compromise petition U/o 23 Rule 3 of CPC.

Draw the compromise decree accordingly.

The compromise petition shall be treated as part and parcel of the decree

Non- Judicial
Conciliator

Judicial
Conciliator

