Present: LO for MCD is present.
Accused is absent.

In the abovesaid challans, the summons issued against the accused received back with the report that the trade for which the challans were issued, have already been closed and the accused are not traceable. I found no reason to disbelieve the report given by the MCD official who is a government servant. Perusal of report reveals that there is no prospect of serving the accused as there is no alternative address of the accused available. There is not even a single document on record as per which the address mentioned on the challan can be said to be the correct address of the accused. It will not be in interest of justice in taking coercive method for securing the presence of the accused by issuing process on the address provided on the challan.

The present matter is a petty offence. No purpose would be served in keeping the present challan on board more so when there is no new address of the accused is available with the complainant.

In view of the fact that the summons issued upon the accused are unserved and there is no fresh address available with the complainant, the present challans are hereby dismissed for non prosecution.

Challan be consigned to record room.
