

Order below Exh. 28
(Passed on 15th February, 2019)

1. Perused the application and record of case.
2. Heard learned advocate for applicants.
3. Despite repeated opportunities granted to the non applicants, non-applicants failed to file their say to the application.
4. Learned advocate for applicants argued that the proposed amendment is necessary to be allowed. He argued that proposed amendment is based on subsequent events.
5. After perusal of record it appears that, the applicant no.1 who is legally wedded wife of non-applicant no.1 has filed the application for herself and also for her minor son. Now, during pendency of the case, the applicant no.1 has given a birth to a daughter. She has given birth to the daughter from the said wedlock. The applicant no.1 is seeking to amend her main application filed under Domestic Violence Act, 2005 by way of adding the name of her newly born daughter and also by adding subsequent events with additional reliefs.
6. The proposed amendment is based on subsequent events. The application is supported by affidavit. No malafide intention appears on the part of applicant no.1. Evidence of applicants is not yet commenced. Domestic Violence Act, 2005 is a beneficial legislation for the protection of woman. It is not disputed that, applicants are residing separately from non-applicants. Proposed amendment is necessary to properly decide the reliefs which are prayed by applicants. No prejudice will cause to other side if the application is allowed. Thus, I hereby pass the following order.

Order

- 1] The application is allowed.
- 2] Applicant no.1 shall carry out necessary amendment on or before next date.
