2. Applicant contended that he needs said vehicle for daily work. There is no need to keep said vehicle in custody. He is ready to abide by the conditions of release of said vehicle. If the vehicle is kept in custody for longer time, its value will deteriorate, so also will cause him loss. Hence, through present application, he is claiming for its release.

3. The I.O. & Ld. APP vide their respective say resisted the application. They submitted that, the vehicle was used for commission of the offence and it is necessary during trial. Hence, prayed for rejection of the application.

4. Perused the application, say filed and the record. Heard both sides. Applicant has filed the copies of Registration Certificate, License, Insurance Papers & Aadhar Card on record which prima facie show that he is owner & possessor of the seized vehicle. Further, non-applicant also has not disputed the ownership of applicant over the seized vehicle.

5. As to the apprehension raised, in my view, stringent conditions can be imposed over applicant regarding safety & maintenance of the vehicle and its production as & when required or directed. Seized vehicle is source of income to applicant and in my view, keeping it in custody will not serve any purpose.
