2. Applicant contended that, she is owner & possessor of the seized vehicle. Police have seized the vehicle in the said crime. She is not the accused in the said crime. She needs said vehicle for her personal use. There is no need to keep said vehicle in custody. She is ready to abide by the conditions of release of said vehicle. If the vehicle is kept in custody for longer time, its value will deteriorate, so also will cause her loss. Hence, through present application, she is claiming for its release.

3. I.O. & Ld. APP vide their respective e-filed say dated 02/07/2026 resisted the application and contended that, the vehicle was used for commission of the offence and hence, it is necessary during trial. Further, if the vehicle is released, possibility of commission of similar offences in future and its disposal cannot be denied. Hence, prayed for rejection of the application.

4. Perused the e-filed application, say filed and the record. Heard both sides. Applicant has e-filed copies of Registration Certificate & Aadhar Card on record which prima facie show that she is owner & possessor of the seized vehicle. Further, non-applicant also has not disputed her ownership over the seized vehicle. It is also apparent that, applicant is not the accused in the said crime.

As to the apprehension raised, in my view, stringent conditions can be imposed over applicant regarding safety & maintenance of the vehicle and its production as & when required or directed.
