The case record is put up by the petitioner.

The petitioner files a petition praying for the withdrawal of this case. The petitioner states that she does not want to proceed with the case as the same is amicably settled by them outside of court and as such she intends to withdraw the case.

Being put on dock and being asked, the petitioner recited the contents of her petition stating further that she filed the same at her own volition and accord. She is duly identified by her pleader and her identity is verified by her pleader.

Heard. Perused. Considered.

As the petitioner willfully wishes to withdraw this case, this Court does not want to stand as impediment in the same. Accordingly, the petition of the petitioner is allowed.
