Learned Additional Solicitor General has informed this Court that, at present, the policy in question pertaining to entry for training for recruitment in the legal arm of Indian Army does not discriminate between married males and married females as entry of both is now barred, and, therefore, the question of gender discrimination no longer arises.

However, the Learned Additional Solicitor General seeks to file an additional affidavit in the matter relating to the policy, substantiating the rationale behind the same. He is granted four weeks' time to do the needful.

List on 22.03.2023.
