he is required to be released. It was, further, submitted that, while considering the earlier application for bail filed by the present applicant, this Court had taken into consideration another offence registered against the present applicant under the provisions of the NDPS Act. However, the Coordinate Bench of this Court, vide order dated 15.04.2024, passed in Criminal Miscellaneous Application (For Successive Regular Bail After Chargesheet) No. 5526 of 2024, granted regular bail to the present applicant. It was, therefore, prayed that this application be allowed.

3. Per contra, learned APP strongly opposed this application and submitted that the present applicant actually participated in the offence in question, where, he allegedly concealed the contraband weighing about 79 kg. at a place near his house and thereafter, he transported the same to the other co-accused, from whose possession, the same was seized. It was, further, submitted that the present applicant is also having another antecedent of the similar nature and therefore, this application be rejected.

allegedly concealed the contraband weighing about 79 kg. at a place near his house and then, he transported the same to the other co-accused, from whose possession, the same was seized. Further, the present applicant is having an antecedent of the similar nature. This is a successive application for regular bail and the learned Advocate for the applicant is not in a position to show any change in circumstances and hence, this application does not deserve consideration.
