2. The learned counsel for the petitioner submitted that the contents of the joint memo were not read over to the petitioner and that even the officials of the Lok Adalat, did not explain the terms of the joint memo to her. The learned counsel submitted that the petitioner under the bonafide impression, that her property were duly preserved, signed the joint memo of compromise. The learned counsel further submitted that, taking advantage of the petitioner's absence from her house the third respondent herein, demolished the dividing wall between his house and the petitioner's house, and joined the petitioner's portion with his portion and further drove away the petitioner from her house. Aggrieved by the same, the petitioner filed the above civil revision petition.

3. The learned counsel appearing for the third respondent does not dispute the demolition of the dividing wall, however, he seeks time for getting instructions regarding the restoration of the demolished wall.

4. At the request of the learned counsel for the third respondent, post the matter on 29.04.2026.
