The Court: This is an application filed by the petitioner seeking further extension of time to deposit a sum of Rs.5,32,80,181/- as directed by this Court vide Judgment dated 19.08.2025.

By the said Judgment dated 19.08.2025, this Court directed the petitioner to deposit the balance awarded amount of Rs.5,32,80,181/- by way of cash security/demand draft to the satisfaction of the Registrar, Original Side, High Court at Calcutta, within a period of 8 weeks. The petitioner thereafter preferred Special Leave Petitions (Civil) being nos. 31165-31166 of 2025 before the Hon'ble Supreme Court which came to be dismissed by order dated 14.11.2025. Subsequently, the respondent initiated execution proceedings being EC/12/2023. This Court vide order dated 08.01.2026, granted a further extension of 6 weeks time to the applicant to comply with the earlier order.

Despite the dismissal of the Special Leave Petitions and the indulgence already shown by this Court, the petitioner has failed to comply with the conditional order of deposit.

The present application seeks yet another extension till 19th March, 2026 on grounds stated to justify continued non-compliance. This Court cannot overlook the fact that repeated extensions in matters involving monetary deposits adversely affect the rights of the decree-holder and dilute the sanctity and binding character of judicial orders. Conditional directions passed by this Court are required to be complied within the stipulated time and extensions cannot be sought as a matter of routine. The conduct of the petitioner does not inspire confidence and reflects a lack of due diligence in complying with the orders of this Court. However, in order to balance equities and to avoid multiplicity of proceedings, this Court as a matter of last indulgence and without recording any approval of the petitioner's conduct, grants a final extension till 19th March, 2026 for the applicant to deposit the aforesaid sum with the Registrar, Original Side.

It is made clear that this extension is pre-emptory in nature. In the event of failure to deposit the said amount within the extended time, this Court shall proceed forthwith in accordance with law, including taking cohesive steps for recovery without entertaining any further application for extension.

Let the matter be listed for compliance on 1st April, 2026.
