A writ petition was presented before the High Court to the bench itself which heard the matter on the very date of the presentation and gave relief to the respondent No.1 as sought for in the petition. That was very strange procedure adopted by the High Court. Apart from that fact, it is clear that the matter was pending before the Central Administrative Tribunal and was to be considered by the Central Administrative Tribunal and even without reference to those proceedings the matter had been disposed of by the High Court. When the tribunal was already seized of the matter what mortal hurry was there for the High Court to dispose of the matter in this manner? In the circumstances, we set ..2/- aside the order made by the High Court and relegate the parties to work out their remedies in the proceeding before the Central Administrative Tribunal. The appeal is allowed accordingly.
