In these appeals the order under challenge is an interlocutory order and it is brought to our notice that the main matters are still pending consideration in R.S.A. before the High Court. It would not be appropriate to consider the various contentions raised in these appeals as it may have some impact or other on the matters pending before the High court. We, therefore, dispose of these appeals by directing that the interim order granted by this court shall continue to be operative until disposal of the appeals before the High Court. The appeals are disposed of accordingly.
