Learned counsel for the petitioners now submits that the Division Bench of the High Court has quashed the detention order subsequently and SLPs have been filed in challenge of the judgment of the High Court. We permit the petitioners to raise the present contentions in view of these SLPs. It is unnecessary for us to deal with the impugned judgment in these SLPs because this judgment has subsequently been merged in the final judgment passed by the High Court which is said to be under challenge before this Court. So, without prejudice to the right of the petitioners to raise all contentions including those raised in these SLPs, we dispose of these SLPs accordingly.
